We offer exclusive hunting trips and must see experiences for every Fallow lovers.

Hunting Areas:

This medium size, elegant game is well adapted to live in Hungary, where we hunt in a 4-5 different distinguished fallow sub-region, Southwest and Eastern Hungary. The habitats are vary between forest covered slight hills and groves with scattered agricultural plains.

Hunting:

We focus the fallow hunting during the peak rutting season in October. This time of the season, fallow bucks have their own places to rut year after year gathering around wallows and rutting pits, then does come to meet these crowned, dotted males who fight each other to win the right to mate.

During the rut, fallow stags make loud, easily recognizable snorting-like sounds, which can direct the hunter to their wallows. This is where there is a good chance of seeing a whole group of animals, so the hunter can choose the desired trophy animal selectively. Taking advantage of the fallow bucks' rutting habit means the success rate is particularly high this time of the season.

After the rut, males separate themselves from females, living alone or in small age groups. As the fallow deer is a daytime animal, the hunting method is typically walk and stalk, or high seat hunt around the most game frequented areas.

Trophy size:

The representative trophy size is about 3.0 kg - 3.5kg weight ("European mount", measured full skull and antlers intact) The top quality, world-record size Hungarian trophies can reach the stunning 5.50 + kg weight.
